The chief point presented was the desirability of arrangements by which moneys voted for the public uses of the Territories should not lapse, in the event of not being spent before July 1st each year. Thompson recognized the injustice of the present system and promised to meet the wishes of the deputation. The premier was asked to give the Territories more executive control in the matter of making appointments. It is stated that Thompson expressed himself favorably on this point also. The deputation pressed for an additional appropriation for the Territories. Thompson thought something should be done. Haultain is well satisfied with his reception.

Rev. John Fernie of Innisfail arrived on Monday's train to moderate in a call being made by the congregation of the Presbyterian church, Edmonton, to their present pastor Rev. D. G. McQueen. The meeting of the congregation was held on Tuesday evening, at which there was good attendance. Rev. Mr. Fernie preached, and Rev. Mr. McQueen was formally called to the pastorate of the church.

At the town council meeting last night Jas. A. Cram was engaged as night watchman, in the place of John Peacock. Instruments bought by the fire brigade band were ordered to be paid for to the amount of $88.75. The agreement with W. Humberstone as licensee of the ferries was approved, as also the names of the bondsmen offered, James Ross and John Cameron. The hawkers and transient traders license fee is raised to $50 a week and $5 each additional day. Full report next issue.

SOME time in October last Dave D. Reed, Frank Kernohan and Dan McPhadden left Edmonton for Johannesburg, Transvaal republic, South Africa. A letter from Mr. Reed was received by Chas. Sandison by last mail, dated Johannesburg, January 14th. The letter says: "The first thing I find is that money is plentiful. They speak of pounds here as you would of dollars in Canada. There were thousands of pounds changed hands here during the Christmas holidays amongst the sporting men. Property is so high here that it would almost take a fortune to speculate with. Common labor is not wanted but a tradesman of any kind can do well. This is a fine country for fruit and vegetables. The markets are full. A good gardener can do well. A man last week was offering £200 a year, nearly $1,000, for one. The negro or kaffer does all the hard work. I have not done anything since I got here, which is three weeks now but Frank and myself have just taken a contract in a coal mine. We are taking ten negroes to start with, but we expect to work twenty of them as soon as we get fairly started. We have a seam of coal six feet thick, but there is two feet of slate in the centre. We have to pick the slate out and use it to fill up with. We get seven shillings and sixpence a ton.

Messrs. Beck & McNamara point out that the BULLETIN report of the judgement in the case of James McDonald against the town is incorrect. They give this version of the matter: Mr. McDonald sued the town for $92.50 for the alleged damage caused to him by the town starting expropriation proceedings and then withdrawing them; this $92.50 was made up of the following items (1) $40—for "advocates fees" in connection with the expropriation proceedings (2) $7.50 for Mr. McDonald's trouble and loss of time (3) $45 for damage alleged to have been sustained by reason of his being disturbed. The claim of the last item $45, was made for the first time in the statement of claim in the action. When the claim for the other two items making $47.50 was put into the town, the town solicitors advised that $20 was all Mr. McDonald was entitled to and this amount the town offered to pay "without prejudice." With their defence the $20 was paid into court by the town who however at the same time claimed that Mr. McDonald should not get his costs of suit and that the town were entitled to costs against Mr. McDonald, by reason of the claim not being brought under the ordinance respecting claims of $100 and under. The judge held that the counsel fees charged by Mr. McDonald's advocates against him were not chargeable by him against the town, thus largely reducing the item "$40 advocates fees." Then without saying how he looked upon the other items of the claim or the town's claim on respect of costs, he allowed Mr. McDonald to take the $20, paid into court by the town and leaves each party to pay their own costs.

EDMONTON BULLETIN, MARCH 2nd 1893.

MCCARTHY THE GREAT M. P.

Usually the bolt of a single member from a party having a majority of sixty or seventy in parliament would not be a very serious affair—to any one but the bolter. But in this particular case it is altogether probable that Mr. McCarthy's action will have an important place in the history of the country. The importance of the event does not arise from the personal or political importance of Mr. McCarthy himself, and yet he is not by any means an unimportant personage. Able and successful to the very highest degree in his profession of law, and always occupying a prominent position in politics, the defection of such a man from the party with which he has hitherto been allied is a matter to attract public attention, but not necessarily anything more. In this case, however, it is not Mr. McCarthy or his reasons for leaving his party which are important, so much as the fact that there is at present a general feeling of unrest within present party lines on both sides of politics, and that the policy advocated by Mr. McCarthy is the one towards which thousands of those who feel themselves out of touch with the present parties are turning and have been turning for years, but until now lacked a something to give cohesion and expression to their views and to project those views into active politics. Now that a man of Mr. McCarthy's stamp and standing has put himself in such a position that by mere force of circumstances he must become the leader, or more properly perhaps the cutting edge, of the political force which these people of, let us say advanced views, constitute, there will be a unity of expression and vigor of action that could not otherwise be, and that will cause an upheaval in Canadian politics before many years, or perhaps even months. The times are ripe for a change. In coming out from his party and declaring himself on public questions as he has, Mr. McCarthy has probably builded better than he knew.

In the conservative party of which Mr. McCarthy has been a life long member and in which he has been a shining light it is universally admitted that certain portions of the recognized policy of that party have not produced promised results. Notably is this the case in regard to the so called national policy. Men voted for that policy for years on the well defined understanding that by doing so they were assisting in the progress and prosperity of the country, by building up manufactures, supplying labor and wages to the artisan and a home market to the farmer. It is a patent fact that neither of these results have been attained. The artisan still goes to the States for employment and the farmer ships his produce to England or the United States as before. While the results promised have not been attained, other results which were not promised have been. A few people have been enabled to accumulate wealth at the expense of the many, which wealth they have used and are still using for the purpose of squeezing their fellow countrymen, by means of combines. These combines have opened the eyes of the producers of the country to the fact that they have been systematically robbed. While they still wish to give home industry all reasonable protection they demand a revision of the tariff in the points in which it is most clearly unjust to them. This is the line which Mr. McCarthy has taken and it is the line in which thousands of conservatives will follow him. Another point on which Mr. McCarthy will receive strong support from many conservatives is his anti French language and separate school policy. The strength of Mr. McCarthy's position on this point depends not so much upon the merits of his case, as upon the feeling, general throughout the country that Quebec has exercised an influence upon Canadian politics during the past twenty years entirely out of proportion to what was her just share. Sending a large body of representatives, who whatever might be their party names were prepared to vote Quebec as against the rest of the country at all times, she has practically decided the policy of the Dominion or been well paid for consenting to what was done. This has caused many people who do not know anything about the French language or separate schools in the Northwest, or who who do not care a rap for them, to support Mr. McCarthy on these points as a means of balancing accounts with Quebec.

In the liberal party, on the other hand, are thousands of free traders, who do not and never did believe in the high protective tariff as a means of inducing national prosperity, and yet who have every desire to see the manufactures of the country increase. Who are willing and anxious to concede to those manufactures incidental protection; that is such protection as the necessities of the revenue would afford, but who are not willing to allow the country at large to be robbed for their sake. These men find in Mr. McCarthy's declarations for tariff reform exactly the ground upon which they desire to stand. A very great cause of dissatisfaction within the liberal party has been the advocacy of commercial union with the States by its leaders. A policy which would reduce Canada to the position of a commercial vassal of the United States, and practically wipe it out politically. Mr. McCarthy's propositions looking to closer and more improved trade relations with Great Britain, which is the market, not only of Canada, but of the world, is far more acceptable than commercial union with the States, both as a business proposition and politically, to thousands of liberals, who little relish the aspersions which the speeches and actions of their leaders have caused to be thrown upon their loyalty during the past few years.

Mr. McCarthy's policy has provided a rallying ground for both conservatives and liberals who desire that the producers of raw material should be placed upon at least an equal footing with the manufacturer of that raw material, who desire that the interests of the whole community should have precedence over those of sections of the community, and who desire to maintain the dignity and prosperity of their country as a country and as a part of the greatest empire on earth. It is not too much to say that no man in Canadian politics at the present time is better fitted to give effect to this policy as its exponent in parliament and in the country, as the leader of a new party, than Mr. McCarthy himself.

IMPORTANT JUDGMENT.

Fraser & Co., vs. Jas. Martin and others. This case after standing for two years came up for trial at the December sittings of the supreme court at Edmonton. The facts were briefly as follows: About 1887 the plaintiff contracted with the defendant Martin to build him a house on three lots in block 11, H.B. Co. reserve. The house was to be paid for by certain instalments, which the defendant for a time met, but afterwards neglected to pay, and upon being requested to do so or to give a mortgage refused. About December 20th, 1891, defendant Martin by letter made certain propositions to plaintiff as to payment, at the same time intimating that if these propositions were not accepted the payments would not be completed. In this letter the defendant valued the property at $2,200, but afterwards, on the day preceding his leaving Edmonton sold the whole property to his wife for $75. The plaintiff claimed the cancellation of transfer to Christina Martin as illegal, and as having been given to delay and hinder the plaintiff. Mrs. Martin, as defendant contended that the property was given in payment of loans she had made to her husband amounting to about $900. The judgment given ordered the cancellation of the transfer alluded to also that plaintiffs be at liberty to sell the property under execution for $642 and after paying Rev. Mr. Baird the amount due on the lots from Martin to pay such judgment and all the costs of the sale and of the suit including the usual counsel fees and a further counsel fee of $75. An injunction was granted against the further incumbrance of the property pending the sale by plaintiffs. N. D. Beck for the defendant Christina Martin. S. S. Taylor for plaintiff and Rev. A. B. Baird.

NORTHWEST BUSINESS.

The following interesting business statistics are taken from the eighth annual supplement of the Commercial:

In the beginning of the year 1880, the business institutions in the entire Canadian Northwest, outside of Winnipeg and Hudson's Bay throughout the country, did not number fifty all told. The business institutions in the city of Winnipeg numbered only about three hundred.

Now in the beginning of 1893, there are in the province of Manitoba outside of Winnipeg, two thousand one hundred and eighty-three mercantile concerns, and in the Northwest Territories one thousand, one hundred and eighteen, which with Winnipeg added makes the grand total for the province and Territories four thousand three hundred and forty-six.

There is but one point, namely, the city of Brandon at which there are over two hundred mercantile concerns, that city having two hundred and twelve, Calgary comes next with one hundred and sixty, Portage la Prairie next with one hundred and forty-one and Edmonton next with one hundred and over. There are other points containing each over fifty places of business.

Of towns containing twenty-five and less than fifty places of business there are in the Northwest twenty-eight.

Stanley Smith, who arrived at Victoria, B. C., from Bella Coola on February 19th, brings word that rumors are in circulation in that district of a terrible Indian massacre that took place a few weeks ago on Sorrow Island, according to the reports some Rivers Inlet Indians went there to hunt otters and on the island were some Kikatlans, a tribe further north, also hunting. A Rivers Inlet man met a Kikatlans girl and her tribe avenged the insult by killing the man. A general fight ensued, when the Rivers Inlet men were vanquished, all being killed but three. The chief was spared because of his rank. The survivors were imprisoned in a hut and the Indians held a pow-wow and thought if they let them go their tribesmen would avenge the massacre. So they decided to act on the maxim that "dead men tell no tales" and shot them.

The grand orange lodge of Belfast has sent out a vehement manifesto against Mr. Gladstone's home rule bill. The manifesto demands either union with Great Britain or complete separation from Great Britain. "We would accept the latter," says the manifesto, "sorrowfully but courageously as the only alternative left to a deserted and betrayed people, but we would resist to the death any attempt to force upon us a bastard combination of the two." The manifesto names March 2nd as the date of a great unionist demonstration in Ulster hall, where the men of Ulster will formally declare their uncompromising opposition to the home rule bill. The manifesto closes with the exhortation that the unionists avoid all action calculated to cause disorder and thus "betray themselves into the hands of their historic foes."

The government storehouse on the Piegan reserve, near Macleod, was broken into last week and 300 pounds of beef stolen. H. H. Nash, who is acting agent during Mr. Pocklington's absence in the east, called the chiefs together and asked them to deliver up the delinquents; and this [not being done, he refused to issue any further supplies until his request was complied with. For three days the Indians stood out, but on the third day so loud were the threats and complaints that the police were sent for. Before they arrived the Indians had evidently made up their minds as to the futility of holding out or attempting violence, for they persuaded the thieves to give themselves up. This they did to the number of five, who were all committed for trial.

Cruelty to cattle has been very prevalent in British Columbia this winter. Ranchers have left the poor animals out in the open without food or shelter, with three or four feet of snow on the ground and the thermometer showing many degrees of cold below zero. Along the line of the C. P. R., between Ducks and Kamloops, heaps of cattle (dying and dead) are to be seen in the open fields, and not a wisp of straw or food of any description in sight. At Ashcroft, Kamloops and many other inland grazing districts numerous cases from the same cause are reported. At Grand Prairie, where the weather has been warmer, cattle are doing well. In Revelstoke district no losses are reported.

Lethbridge News: It would seem that the government have now determined to leave the protective tariff practically unchanged until the Cleveland administration in the United States has shown its hand. The only changes at present contemplated are slight reductions in the duties on coal oil and binding twine. This waiting to see what someone else is going to do appears to be a very poor style of policy. It is claimed that the duties on the necessities of life and agricultural implements are proving a hindrance to the settlement of the country. This is a question that concerns Canada, and whether the United States adhere to or change their existing tariff policy, is not going to affect it one way or the other. Anything that is detrimental to the interests of the people of Canada should be swept away at once, without waiting to see what the new government of the United States are going to do, and if the present protective policy of the Dominion is not in any way detrimental to our interests, then there is no reason why it should be changed at all.

SEED WHEAT.

The following letter on the subject of seed wheat explains itself, and the advertisement on the same subject appearing in this issue:

CAMPELL YOUNG, ESQ.,

Secretary-Treasurer Edmonton Agricultural Society,

EDMONTON, ALBERTA.

DEAR SIR:—Your letter 13th instant. It is the intention of the company to transport seed grain, wheat, oats and barley, equal to sample prepared by the Dominion government grain inspector, which will be placed in the hands of our agents, free of charge between stations west of Winnipeg, including all branches in Manitoba and the Northwest.

It is to be hoped that this liberality on the part of the company will meet with encouragement by the farmers in a complete change of seed.

Yours truly,

ROBERT KERR,

General Freight Agent.

Per Shaw.

Reports received from various points along Milk river state that the loss of cattle is already large, with an indication of a clean up pilgrim stock. In the vicinity of Big Sandy very little loss of cattle is reported; but from Harlem to Malta, along Milk river, the outlook is not very encouraging. Tens of thousands of Texas and southern cattle were driven in late last fall, and being poor and weak from the long drive, did not have time to take on flesh and get in proper condition before the cold struck them. Native cattle are wintering fairly well. Parties who came in on the belated trains report seeing large numbers of dead calves and dogs in the vicinity of Malta.
